This webinar will start with a review of the justifications cited by perpetrators of mass attacks, as well as a consideration of underlying psychological dynamics. Next, three psychological types of mass attackers will be presented to demonstrate the intersection of their internal dynamics and life experiences. Following this, four additional cases will be reviewed to highlight the variability in functioning among perpetrators and the need to look behind superficial accomplishments to detect risk factors for violence.

Course Objectives

At the conclusion of this course, participants will be able to:

1. Identify three psychological categories of mass attackers.
2. Explain the role of identity issues and aspirations in mass attackers.
3. Discuss the intersection of psychological dynamics and life experiences as risk factors for violence.

Continuing Education: 3 (three) CEs for psychologists and approved for mental health practice. See next page for additional information.

Continuing Education

The Nebraska Psychological Association is approved by the American Psychological Association to sponsor continuing education for psychologists. The Nebraska Psychological Association maintains responsibility for this program and its contents. Participants attending the live webinar can receive 3 CEs for psychologists, with full attendance required. No partial credit is awarded; late arrival or early departure will preclude awarding of CE credits for psychologists attending the live webinar. Those arriving more than 15 minutes after the scheduled start time or leaving before the workshop is completed will not receive CE credits.

Participants selecting the On-Demand option can receive 3 CEs for psychologists upon full viewing of the video and successful completion of the post-test. CEs for those completing the On-Demand option will be awarded by the Pennsylvania Psychological Association which is an Approved Continuing Education Provider for Nebraska CEs (See NE DHHS 172 NAC 155, 014.02(D)(ii)(11)).

This program meets the criteria of an approved continuing education program for mental health practice.
